

++[!LIVE!]*] Super Bowl 2025 LIVE@STreaming Eagles vs Chiefs ON TV Channel 09 February 2025

The culmination of an 18-week regular season and a playoff gauntlet brings us to Super Bowl LIX. The Philadelphia Eagles and Kansas City Chiefs will square off with the last team standing, owning the right to call themselves Super Bowl champions and hoist the Lombardi Trophy. This article posted on 10 February, 2025

As we've done throughout the season, we've collected all of the best picks and gambling content from from CBSSports.com and SportsLine and put them in one place, so you can get sports betting picks against the spread from our CBS Sports experts as well as additional feature content for each game, including plays from top SportsLine experts and the SportsLine Projection Model, best bets from our staff, and more.
All NFL betting courtesy of SportsLine consensus.
Which picks can you make with confidence for Super Bowl LIX? Visit SportsLine, as its incredible model simulates every NFL game 10,000 times and is up well over $7,000 for $100 players on top-rated NFL picks
since its inception.

Kansas City Chiefs vs. Philadelphia Eagles

Time: Sunday, 6:30 p.m. ET (FOX), stream on fubo (try for free)

Current odds: Chiefs -1.5, O/U 48.5

Pete Prisco's Super Bowl LIX pick

"How do you pick against Patrick Mahomes in the biggest game of the year? You don't.

"That's the simple way to make a pick for Super Bowl LIX. When the Kansas City Chiefs and

Philadelphia

Eagles take the field Sunday at the Caesars Superdome, the Eagles will do so with a better roster, more top-end players and a physical style that exudes bully ball.

"But the Eagles don't have Mahomes. He is Mr. Clutch, maybe the best ever at getting it done when his team is down or needs him to make a play. The Chiefs are 6-1 this season when trailing in the fourth quarter. In nine playoff games where the Chiefs were behind in the fourth quarter, Mahomes has won six of them and lost two others in overtime after tying it. He is 3-0 in come-from-behind victories in the Super Bowl. You picking against that?"

Pick: Chiefs 30, Eagles 27

To read Prisco's full analysis, click here.

SportsLine's Matt Severance's Super Bowl LIX pick

SportsLine's Matt Severance has been on a 37-12 roll on NFL games coming into this Super Bowl and has now released his best bet for this game between Kansas City and Philadelphia. Severance has found a key X-factor that has him backing a bet that is plus money. We can tell you he's leaning Over the 49 point total for the game, but to see that plus money best bet you'll have to go to SportsLine.

Will Brinson's long-shot bets

CBS Sports Senior NFL writer Will Brinson cooked up 10 long-shot bets for Super Bowl LIX, including two revolving around Eagles quarterback Jalen Hurts.

Jalen Hurts 300+ passing yards (+710): In a perfect world for the Eagles, this doesn't happen. If passing totals remain suppressed, it likely means the Eagles have run the ball effectively, Saquon Barkley is gashing the Chiefs on the ground and Hurts isn't being asked to chuck the ball around a ton. But there's a more than reasonable chance of two things happening here. One, the Eagles decide to zag and come out throwing the football a bunch to throw the Chiefs defense off, which would lead to more passing yards for

Jalen Hurts'

Hurts as well as potentially elevate the pace of this game significantly and lead to more passing attempts. Or two,

the Chiefs jump out to a lead and the Eagles are forced to throw a lot against the K.C. defense. Remember, Hurts topped

300 yards against Kansas City in this very spot two years ago. Getting more than 7-1 odds on it happening is a nice look and you can sprinkle on smaller bands (300-325 and 326-350) at some massive numbers as well if you think this is a possibility.

Will Brinson's long-shot bets

CBS Sports Senior NFL writer Will Brinson cooked up 10 long-shot bets for Super Bowl LIX, including two revolving around Eagles quarterback Jalen Hurts.

Jalen Hurts 300+ passing yards (+710): In a perfect world for the Eagles, this doesn't happen. If Jalen Hurts' passing totals remain suppressed, it likely means the Eagles have run the ball effectively, Saquon Barkley is gashing the Chiefs on the ground and Hurts isn't being asked to chuck the ball around a ton. But there's a more than reasonable chance of two things happening here. One, the Eagles decide to zag and come out throwing the football a bunch to throw the Chiefs defense off, which would lead to more passing yards for Hurts as well as potentially elevate the pace of this game significantly and lead to more passing attempts. Or two, the Chiefs jump out to a lead and the Eagles are forced to throw a lot against the K.C. defense. Remember, Hurts topped 300 yards against Kansas City in this very spot two years ago. Getting more than 7-1 odds on it happening is a nice look and you can sprinkle on smaller bands (300-325 and 326-350) at some massive numbers as well if you think this is a possibility.

"On top of that, Mahomes is dynamite in games that have a tight spread like we have here.

When the spread is less than three points, Mahomes' Chiefs are 7-0 straight up and ATS in his playoff career.

"... Kansas City becomes the NFL's first-ever three-peat Super Bowl champion and Mahomes adds another chapter to his Hall of Fame résumé."

Projected score: Chiefs 28, Eagles 24

The pick: Chiefs -1

To read Sullivan's full analysis, click here.

SportLine's Alex Selesnick's Super Bowl LIX prop picks

SportLine's Alex Selesnick (aka PropStarz) entered the 2024 season on a 461-350 run with his NFL picks and has now turned his attention to the prop market for Super Bowl LIX. Selesnick has circled three best bets for this game, including a plus money play revolving around one of the star tight ends, who has seen a ton of action heading into this Super Bowl. To see that trio of bets, go check out SportsLine.

"If there's one team in the NFL that I've had a good read on all season, it's the Chiefs. Since their Week 6 bye, I've gone 14-0 picking their games straight up and 11-3 against the spread. In the wild-card round, I predicted that they'd score exactly 23 points against the Texans and that's what happened. In the AFC title game, I predicted that they'd beat the Bills by exactly three points and that's what happened.

"The Chiefs are aiming to become the first team in NFL history to win three straight Super Bowls, and well, there's a reason that's never happened. At some point, you run into a team that's designed to beat you and I feel like the Eagles match up with the Chiefs better than any team Kansas City has faced this season."

The pick: Eagles 34-24 over Chiefs

Record picking Eagles games this season: 11-9

Record picking Chiefs games this season: 17-2 (My best record picking any team)